Changes to public health guidelines announced which will come into place on Tuesday 5 May

The changes to the public health guidelines that will come into place next Tuesday, 5 May are that:

- people will be able to go up to 5 kilometres from their home to exercise

- people who are cocooning can leave their homes for exercise as long as they avoid all contact with other people

These changes were announced alongside Ireland's Roadmap for reopening society and business - which lays out a timetable for lifting the current restrictions.
