"My fellow Nurses and Midwives,

2020 was designated the International Year of the Nurse and the Midwife by The World Health Assembly, to honor the 200th anniversary of Florence Nightingale's birth and advance nurses' vital role in transforming health care around the world.

The Year of the Nurse and Midwife 2020 has truly been our year; it was our opportunity to celebrate and champion the cause of nurses and midwives, and to highlight the incredible, life-changing work we do for patients across our health system.

This year was not the year we nurses expected – in fact; it was not the year anyone expected! It has been historic! A year during which the universal health system has faced unprecedented challenges."

Ms Gylia Mein, the Chief Nursing Officer, addresses nurses for the New Year.
