The data in this table are deduplicated so that people should not be 'double-counted', even if they appear in multiple priority groups.

Following data quality improvement work, the numbers of people classified as care home residents has increased compared to figures presented before 30th March. Uptake figures now exclude data on those who have died from any cause. The figures for care home residents, age-groups and clinical risk groups only include people who are recorded as Wales residents. The figures for care home staff, health care workers and social care workers may include people who work in Wales, but live elsewhere. Figures for care home residents and care home workers are based on care homes for older adults. Figures for adults aged 16 to 65 years in an at-risk group do not include Clinically Extremely Vulnerable adults, data collection and collation for this group is still underway and there may be changes to the reported group size. The groups in each line of the table are not mutually exclusive and people may appear in more than one. For example, people aged 80 years and older who live in a care home will appear in the rows for "80 years and older" and "Care home residents". All data presented in this table come from the Welsh Immunisation System (WIS). The data undergo continuing quality assurance and as a result there may be fluctuations on a day to day basis in group size totals and coverage. Following data quality improvement work, the numbers of people classified as care home workers has changed compared to figures presented before 26th February. Not all data fields within WIS are complete for everyone and there will be a number of individuals who cannot currently be classified into priority groups 1 to 9. These individuals are allocated into their appropriate group totals as data completeness improves. The national Group Size figure for social care workers is not available, an estimate for percentage coverage in this group will be added to this table shortly. All data presented here are a provisional snapshot of activity and will be subject to future revision.
